

U.S. Border Security.Info

Volume 6, Issue 9, September 2012

Sneak of the Month:
Democrat National Committee

Candidates Too Similar on Immigration Issues Warns Committee

The U.S. Border Security Committee is warning that the two major party presidential tickets have way too much in common on the issue of immigration and that no matter who wins the election, opponents of Amnesty for illegal immigrants likely will have a major fight on their hands next year.

The Dream Act, legislation which was blocked by Senate filibuster in 2010, is popular with both major candidates. Just in time to boost support among Latino voters, President Obama issued orders to stop deportations of illegal immigrants for those individuals who would have qualified

Continued on page 3 "Similar"

Paul Ryan has supported the Dream Act Amnesty scheme in the past.

Party Conventions Highlight Hispanics, Ignore Border Security Supporters

Both the Republican and Democrat party conventions proved one fact without a doubt: the two major parties desperately want the Hispanic vote.

Republicans featured Hispanic rising stars, such as Sen. Marco Rubio, New Mexico

Gov. Susana Martinez, and Texas Senate candidate Ted Cruz. Democrats responded with talk-show host Cristina Saralegui (a.k.a. the Latina Oprah), convention keynote speaker Julian Castro, the mayor of San Antonio, and

Continued on page 3 "Conventions"

While Mexico teeters on the edge of civil war and America's borders remain wide open, the Democrats' celebrated Benita Veliz, an illegal alien student.

Border Security News in Brief

Gap in Northern Border Security Exposed Playing at Law Breaking

Last month, an empty rail car that was sitting in the New York CSX rail yard in Niagara Falls rolled across the international bridge border and into Canada. Neither Canadian nor US border guards noticed the errant car until a Via Rail employee discovered and reported the incident.

The bridges are covered by video cameras but since this incident, the international railway commission has installed an alarm tied to the cameras to prevent another occurrence.

In Alberto, Durango, Mexico, a town about 700 miles south of the US border, a new theme park named La Caminata glorifies the experience of an illegal border crossing from Mexico into the US. Park thrill-seekers pay for a 7.5-mile hike through the Durango desert with a "coyote" guide barking orders and American Border Patrol agents in hot pursuit.

Although park organizers claim that the intent is not to train but rather to discourage illegal crossing by showing immense difficulty, we can't help but believe that the Alberto residents making a game out of this serious matter isn't that different than the attention border security issues have received by most of the Congress.

Narco Subs

Always seeking new ways to cross the US border undetected, South American drug cartels came up with a new tactic to transport narcotics and passengers destined for our shores: small, radar-dodging, self-propelled, semi-submersibles (SPSSs). Drug cartels continue to build their narco subs deep in the South American jungles.

Help Defend Our Borders!

I want to help defend America's sovereignty from the invasion of illegal aliens. Enclosed is my contribution of:

$10 $15 $25 $50

$100 Other: $ _____

Name: _____

Address: _____

Return this form with your contribution to:

U.S. Border Security Council
P.O. Box 96197
Washington, DC 20090-6197

AHNL607

SNEAK OF THE MONTH:

Democrat National Committee

We have to hand it to the Democrat National Committee for showing their true colors in HD during the national telecast of the party convention in Charlotte. Illegal immigrant Benita Veliz spoke at the podium during the festivities as part of the outreach designed to appeal to Hispanic voters -- the fastest growing ethnic voting bloc in the country. Veliz, a student, had her deportation halted under President Obama's "dreamer" policy. This backdoor amnesty program does not grant citizenship, but it does allow countless lawbreakers a reprieve from deportation. We think that the DNC leaders should be ashamed of portraying law breakers as heroes.

Similar (continued from page 1)

for the Dream Act, namely students who were smuggled into the country as children. The Democrats hope to placate Hispanic voters by allowing for a new, temporary legal status to most illegal immigrants under age 30 and for those individuals to qualify for employment.

Republican challenger Mitt Romney, while he has somewhat opposed amnesty for “dreamers” and their families, is demonstrating a willingness to compromise on the issue in order to curry support from Hispanic voters. He didn’t significantly criticize the President for his illegal Amnesty executive order and his running mate Paul Ryan has a very mixed record on Amnesty. Paul Ryan has even supported the Dream Act in the past.

To his credit, Ryan did vote against the 2010 Dream Act legislation and supports E-Verify checks on job applicants. However, in 2011 Ryan supported budget cuts of $600 million from border security and immigration enforcement.

“Unfortunately, neither the Republican nor Democratic tickets this year are solidly pro-border security,” says

National Spokesman Steve LeBlanc. “Regardless of which party sits in the Oval Office after the next election, there is no doubt that the White House and Congress will be bombarded by pro-amnesty and immigration reform forces already preparing for another attempt to pass permanent relief for “dreamers” and to expand benefits and legal status to illegal immigrants. We are hoping for the best but I fear we are in for a huge fight this spring no matter what happens on Election Day.”

Conventions (continued from page 1)

illegal alien student Benita Veliz.

“I’m tired of the politicians spending all their time pandering to the Hispanic community while not paying any attention to the crisis in Mexico or the fact that our borders are still wide open,” complains Committee National Spokesman Steve LeBlanc.

“It’s critical all border security supporters vote in the elections this fall for the candidates who most closely reflect your beliefs and values. And, if possible, vote early to insure that your vote is counted and your voice is heard by leaders in your community, your state, and our nation.”

“It is clear to me that the Democrats simply don’t want our votes and the Republicans believe that we will vote for their candidates no matter what,” explains Committee National Spokesman Steve LeBlanc.

LeBlanc believes that supporters of tough border security measures are being taken for granted by both Democrats and Republicans.

“Well, that may or may not be true. We’ll see how these elections turn out. However, if anyone believes that the American people actually support illegal aliens and want them to remain in our country, they are sorely mistaken. All they need to do is look at the U.S. Border Security Council’s track record on preventing an Amnesty bill from getting through Congress. We have a lot of supporters and we care about this issue. Don’t mess with us!”

The Newsletter of the U.S. Border Security Council

P.O. Box 96197
Washington, DC 20090-6197
© 2012

U.S. Border Security.Info is a periodic publication of the U.S. Border Security Council. Articles may be reprinted as long as they are attributed to the U.S. Border Security Council.

The U.S. Border Security Council is a Committee of National Grassroots Advocacy, which is recognized as tax-exempt under Section 501(c)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code. Since we lobby Congress, donations are not tax-deductible.

From the Council:

Dear Friend,

While the U.S. Border Security Council can't endorse candidates for public office, we can and do urge every American who cares about our border and immigration crises to vote and vote as early as you possibly can.

The next President and Congress will undoubtedly have to deal with the deteriorating situation in Mexico and the ever increasing problem of illegal immigration.

I also fully expect that Amnesty Plus, which we've managed to bottle up in Congress for two year now, will be introduced again in January. We will need as many border security patriots in office as possible in order to stop it!

Please remember to vote for whichever candidate or candidates you believe will help us secure the borders and protect our families.

Keep fighting for America,

Steven J. LeBlanc
Former Sergeant, U.S. Army
Operation Desert Storm Combat Veteran
For the U.S. Border Security Council

Obama's Illegal Uncle Shows Huge Flaws in the U.S. System

President Barack Obama's now notorious uncle, Onyango Obama, was arrested on drunken driving and other charges in August of 2011. However, that's only part of the story. Before his arrest Uncle Omar, was a fugitive from deportation since 1992 – nearly 20 years – and he managed to not only receive a Massachusetts driver's license, but to also to have issued a federal Social Security number.

“Unfortunately there are millions of Uncle Omar's out there right now who are able to skirt the law, get Social Security numbers and remain in the U.S. illegally. The real problem remains that no one along the way at US Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) puts a stop to an acknowledged illegal alien being granted a Social Security number,” says Steve LeBlanc, “This gaping hole needs to be adressed immediately.”

The Social Security Administration is authorized to issue SSNs to legally admitted immigrants, but refuses to answer questions about what happens to that number if the immigrant is ordered deported.

“Typical of the Washington shuffle, Massachusetts pointed at the Social Security Administration, which in turn pointed questions to the Department of Homeland Security, which oversees ICE, which enforces immigration law, and ICE is saying that it cannot comment on specific cases without a privacy waiver signed by Obama or his representative,” said LeBlanc.

Before 1995, if an immigrant applied for asylum in the US, they were automatically granted work authorization and a corresponding SSN. However the Social Security Administration has no uniform method to revoke or “freeze” the SSN once granted. That means aliens who overstay visas or legal residents deported for criminal activity can continue using their issued SSNs with impunity. “This is insane. There must be a way to revoke Social Security numbers from people who have been ordered to be deported,” LeBlanc says. Part of the nationwide E-Verify program would requirement the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to block SSN verification of aliens who have been deportation orders or by temporary workers whose visa is expired. However, illegal alien supporters vigorously oppose E-Verify. And so thousands of Uncle Omars remain in the U.S. using “legitimate” Social Security numbers.