Minnesota Governor Mark Dayton

Obama Tells Central America that Amnesty is Coming

During a recent trip to El Salvador, President Barack Obama pledged to pass an Amnesty bill through Congress this year, reiterating his belief that he can get at least some Republicans to back his plans to reward illegal aliens with a “path to citizenship.”

“My hope is that [Republicans] begin to recognize over the next year that we can’t solve this problem without taking a broad, comprehensive approach,” Obama said in El Salvador.

Approximately two million El Salvadorans now live in the United States.

“The President is not backing down,” explains U.S. Border Security Council National Spokesman Steve LeBlanc. “He has his Amnesty Plus bill -- S.6 -- all cued up in the Senate and now he’s looking for just a few Republicans to help him ram it through.”

Obama has been embarked on a public relations blitz recently,

During a recent visit to El Salvador, President Obama promised that he would continue to fight for amnesty for illegal aliens. Senate Bill 6, or Amnesty Plus, was recently introduced in the Senate by Majority Leader Harry Reid.

Defense Department Agrees With Council on Border Danger

During testimony before a Congressional subcommittee, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Counter-narcotics and Global Threats William Wechsler agreed with warnings issued by the U.S. Border Security Council that Mexican drug gangs were spreading their operations across the country thanks to our wide open south border.

The stunning admission by a senior member of the Obama Administration directly contradicts

Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano’s recent assertions that the southern border is “as secure as it has ever been.”

Wechsler testified that “The influence of Mexican transnational, criminal organizations extends well beyond the southwest border to cities across the country, including Atlanta, Chicago, and Detroit. All your [congressional] constituencies are confronted by this threat.”

Once here, these violent gangs

Border Security News in Brief

Most Illegals in Texas on Welfare

According to a report released by the Center for Immigration Studies, seventy percent of illegal immigrants in Texas receive welfare assistance, with illegal immigrants generally receiving benefits on behalf of their U.S.-born children. Illegal immigrants with children primarily use food assistance programs and Medicaid the report says.

Homeland Security Says Illegal Alien Students are Off Limits

Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano recently announced that illegal immigrant students who meet the criteria in last year's failed "DREAM Act" Amnesty bill are not a "priority" for her department's law enforcement efforts. "The reason we set priorities is so that the focus could be on those in the country who are also committing other illegal acts," she said.

Environmental Laws Stymie Border Patrol

Federal bureaucrats denied a U.S. Border Patrol station in Arizona permission to build a road deemed necessary for "achieving or maintaining operational control" of an area along the southwest border. According to an April 15 report by the Government Accountability Office (GAO), officials from the Department of Interior and Department of Agriculture, denied permission to build the road because of environmental restrictions related to the Wilderness Act.

SNEAK OF THE MONTH: Minnesota Governor Mark Dayton

This month's "Sneak of the Month" is Minnesota Governor Mark Dayton. Dayton, a liberal Democrat, recently rescinded a popular and necessary policy implemented by his Republican predecessor that required state law enforcement officials to cooperate with federal officials in enforcing immigration laws.

Dayton's executive order reversing the policy made national headlines for its audacity.

The order had required state agencies for public safety, corrections and commerce to work with federal officials by "cross-designating" state agents to enforce immigration and customs law, combing the prison population to identify illegal immigrants and participating in efforts to uncover document fraud, gang activity and child predators. Those activities will no longer be carried out in Minnesota.

assuring pro-Amnesty groups and constituencies that he is still committed to passing the highly unpopular legislation this year.

For instance, at a town hall-type event sponsored by the Spanish language television station Univision, Obama reassured the audience that he had no intention of enforcing the nation's immigration laws and deporting illegal aliens. He even went so far as to declare that illegal aliens weren't "criminals" and that he would allow the government to only deport illegal aliens if they broke additional laws.

"We have redesigned our enforcement practices under the law to make sure that we're focusing primarily on criminals, and so our deportation of criminals is up about 70 percent. Our deportation of non-criminals is down, and that's because we want to focus our resources on those folks who are destructive to the community," Obama told one audience member at the event.

"The President is not backing down," explains U.S. Border Security Council National Spokesman Steve LeBlanc. "He has his Amnesty Plus bill -- S.6 -- all cued up in the Senate and now he's looking for just a few Republicans to help him ram it through."

"President Obama is deliberately not enforcing the laws because it is politically expedient for him not to," LeBlanc points out. "This is a type of 'soft amnesty' and it cannot be allowed to continue. The U.S. Border Security Council is supporting state laws that encourage local officials to do the job if Obama's Homeland Security Department refuses to do so. We also want Congress to get involved in this and demand that the Administration do its job. Illegal aliens are breaking the law and must be held to account."

LeBlanc says the the Council is ramping up its efforts to rally the American people against Obama's drive for an "official" immigration amnesty. "We have launched our largest grassroots campaign effort ever to defeat Harry Reid's S.6 Amnesty Plus bill. This debate over illegal immigration is as hot as ever and we intend to win this battle."

been saying for years," explains Steve LeBlanc, the U.S. Border Security Council's National Spokesman. "By leaving our border wide open, we have effectively invited these drug gangs into our communities. Now they are everywhere."

Wechsler didn't stop there in his testimony, however. He also directly criticized the Obama Administration for not being organized to confront this growing threat. "Unfortunately, coordination of domestic and international activities can be especially challenging inside the executive branch," Wechsler said.

"I feel for Mr. Wechsler," LeBlanc says. "He seems like he actually wants to defend this country but through a combination of incompetence and crass pandering to the illegal alien community, his bosses in the Administration won't let him do it."

Wechsler stated that the issue of these violent gangs infiltrating the United States across the undefended border is a national security concern and the Pentagon wants to help to defend against these threats. "Many of the global and regional terrorists who threaten interests of the United States finance their activities with proceeds from narcotics trafficking," he warned.

"William Wechsler is blowing the whistle on the Administration," LeBlanc explains. "The Council will demand that Congress protect this man when Obama's political hatchet men go after him."

Dear Friend,

The President has not given up on Amnesty for illegal aliens and I hope you haven't given up on trying to stop him.

You see, the next few months are going to be crucial. According to my sources on Capitol Hill, the White House and Republican Senator Lindsey Graham are getting closer to a deal to pass at least parts of the Amnesty Plus bill (S.6).

This is very bad news and I need your help now, more than ever.

Please make a contribution to build up the U.S. Border Security Council's war chest and help us defeat this Amnesty Plus "bipartisan deal." There is a coupon on page two of this newsletter that you can use to send in your gift.

Now is the time for you and I to fight back. No Amnesty Plus!

Council Blasts Deal That Cuts Border Fence Funding

The U.S. Border Security Council is sharply criticizing both the Obama Administration and congressional Republicans for agreeing to a 2011 budget that slashes $226 million in funding for the border fence along the U.S.-Mexico border.

"I can't believe that Republicans and Democrats came together like this to stab the American people in the back," says Council National Spokesman Steve LeBlanc. "The federal government wastes so much money on pork barrel projects, welfare and ridiculous

As part of a budget agreement to keep the government funded for the rest of the fiscal year, Capitol Hill Republicans agreed to slash $226 million in funding for the border fence along the U.S.-Mexico border.

bureaucratic regulations yet the politicians instead decided to cut money for a critical border security program."

LeBlanc says the Council will fight the cuts and will demand that Congress fund the construction of an impregnable wall along the southern frontier in the 2012 budget."

"Border security should be more important than funding cowboy poetry festivals and bridges to nowhere," LeBlanc explains. "The border fence, or better yet, a border wall, will save American lives by keeping violent invaders out and will actually save the federal government money by keeping welfare seeking illegals out of the country."
