“Amnesty Plus” Re-Introduced in Senate as Senate Bill 6

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid has once again introduced Amnesty Plus. This session, his bill is number S.6 instead of S.9, demonstrating how important it is to the majority leader and the Obama Administration.

This session’s version of Amnesty Plus is even worse than last session’s. S.6 includes the “DREAM Act,” which confers legal status to children of illegal aliens. It also includes a call for a national ID card, which the U.S. Border Security Council believes will be handed out to illegal aliens across the nation in conjunction with the blanket amnesty.

“This is a horrific bill that will

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid has officially reintroduced “Amnesty Plus.” Senate Bill 6 includes a massive immigration amnesty, passage of the DREAM Act for illegal alien children, and authorizes handing out national ID cards to illegals.

Council Demands Border Agents Be Adequately Armed

The U.S. Border Security Council is demanding that Border Patrol Agents be better armed, and that the rules of engagement for agents confronting illegal aliens along the border be changed.

The Council’s call is in response to the murder of Border Patrol Agent Brian Terry recently. Terry was killed by heavily armed illegal aliens after he and his colleagues confronted them and fired their non-lethal bean bag guns at them. The illegals fired at the agents and, before they could respond, the criminals shot and killed Terry.

“The very fact that our Border Patrol Agents are being given bean bag guns in what is effectively a war zone is criminal in and of itself,” says Council National Spokesman Steve LeBlanc. “These heroes should be heavily armed and they should operate under rules of engagement that first and foremost allow them to protect themselves.”

Border Security News in Brief

Proposal Calls for Dumping Illegals At Congressional Offices

Texas State Representative Lois Kolkhorst has drafted a bill that would allow any law enforcement agency that has custody of an illegal immigrant to take the illegal to 'the office of a U.S. Senator or Representative' and leave them there.

The proposal would require that a staffer for a Congressman or Senator would have to sign a receipt for each illegal alien delivered to their office.

Sheriff Who Won't Enforce Law to Get No Federal Funds

A proposed budget item in SB 1621 spells out any Arizona county with a population of between 500,000 and two million "shall not receive any monies from the Gang and Immigration Intelligence Team Enforcement mission fund." That language, in effect, would bar Pima County, Arizona, from receiving the federal immigration enforcement grants. Pima County Sheriff Clarence Dupnik has said he will not enforce Arizona's popular immigration law.

Utah Law Isn't What It Seems

A new law in Utah is billed as a tough anti-illegal immigration measure like Arizona's popular law. However, last minute additions by open borders lobbyists created a "guest worker" program that is akin to Amnesty and guts many of the enforcement provisions that makes Arizona's law so effective. For instance, only individuals suspected of committing a felony may have their immigration status checked by local and state law enforcement personnel.

SNEAK OF THE MONTH: San Jose California Police Chief Chris Moore

This month's "Sneak of the Month" is San Jose, California, Police Chief Chris Moore.

Moore recently declared that he opposed local law enforcement officers enforcing immigration laws. Moore is quoted as saying "I need to focus on partnerships with communities... This [the issue of immigration enforcement] has become a wedge in our communities and we need to remove that wedge."

Moore reportedly also claimed that enforcing immigration laws and protecting his constituents from illegal alien drug gangs actually made his community less safe.

During his tenure as police chief, Moore has made appeasing the Hispanic community his top priority. He has gone so far as to drop the policy of impounding cars of unlicensed drivers for one month in order to "improve" his department's standing with the illegal alien community.

undermine the security and prosperity of the United States,” warns LeBlanc. “If S.6 passes, then it will not only reward millions of illegal aliens for breaking our immigration laws, it will also encourage more and more aliens to pour across our southern border expecting to also receive amnesty.”

This is, in fact, just what happened as a result of the immigration amnesty of the 1980s. Millions of poor Mexicans and citizens of other Central American nations crossed the open southern border into the United States.

“Defeating S.6 is the Council’s number one priority,” LeBlanc promises. “There are many other critical legislative initiatives that affect border security but Amnesty Plus is the most important.”

Over the past two years, the gion is probably at least as dangerous as Afghanistan.

Council has been able to keep Amnesty Plus from even coming up for a vote by swamping Congress with phone calls and petitions. LeBlanc says the organization will do the same thing this year.

“We are already hard at work mobilizing the American people against this latest incarnation of Amnesty Plus,” explains U.S. Border Security Council Spokesman Steve LeBlanc. “We knew this was coming months ago and have been urging our supporters to fight back.”

“Our goal, frankly, is to generate more petitions than ever,” he adds. “Harry Reid and Barack Obama will press harder this year to pass

“The drug runners and coyotes who smuggle illegal aliens across the border carry automatic weapons and Molotov Cocktails,” he warns. “Bean bag guns are not only useless but dangerous.”

The Council is demanding that federal authorities immediately change the rules to allow the Border Patrol to fight back against the violence along America’s southern frontier. “The first thing that needs to happen is for the federal government to acknowledge that we are facing what is effectively a war on the border,” asserts LeBlanc. “It is only a matter of time before the front lines move into America’s suburbs and cities if we don’t start fighting back. More brave agents will needlessly die unless the rules are changed.”

this nonsense than they have in the previous two years.”

Indeed, there is every indication that the White House is trying to forge an alliance with Republicans, like Lindsey Graham, who favor amnesty. Their strategy seems to be to appear to “water down” Amnesty Plus with some pro-border security language in an attempt to get just enough support to pass the bill through Congress.

“I actually believe Amnesty Plus can pass the Senate right now,” LeBlanc warns. “I don’t believe we have enough solid votes against it to even sustain a filibuster. That’s why we need to get to work immediately. This thing could come up for a vote in the next few months and we absolutely must stop that from happening.”

In Texas, members of the Texas Rangers who patrol the border are armed with military-style automatic weapons, bullet-proof vests, and helmets, and high-tech surveillance helicopters support agents on the ground by carrying snipers wearing night-vision glasses.

“Agent Terry should be alive today,” laments LeBlanc. “This brave young man died because a bunch of pro-illegal alien bureaucrats didn’t want to ‘offend’ the open-borders lobby. They would rather have agents killed in the line of duty than to risk offending a special interest group like La Raza. The Obama Administration has blood on its hands.”

Dear Friend,

Harry Reid has gone and done it.

He's introduced his Amnesty Plus proposal again. This time as Senate Bill 6, or "S.6."

I'm not surprised, though. The Senate Majority Leader remains committed to ramming Amnesty Plus through the Senate.

However, the U.S. Border Security Council is ready. We've been campaigning against Amnesty Plus for two years now. We killed it in the last session of Congress and with your help we will kill it in this session, too.

In the coming months, you will receive a number of requests from me to sign petitions against Amnesty Plus. Please sign and return each one of them. Each one is a vital part of our long-term strategy for defeating this awful bill.

Council Sends Out National Legal Citizen Survey

The U.S. Border Security Council is once again sending out its national Legal Citizen Survey to supporters in all fifty states.

"This survey is our annual attempt to take the pulse of our supporters," explains Steve LeBlanc, the Committee's national spokesman. "We use the results of this massive effort to plan our legislative strategy for the year and to show Congress in objective terms how our supporters feel about critical issues."

This year's survey includes questions about the Border

Fence, Amnesty Plus and size of the U.S. Border Patrol.

"The so-called 'mainstream' news media is always polling Americans about controversial issues, and they always seem to conclude that Americans love illegal aliens," LeBlanc explains.

"I know that isn't the truth. This survey program is part of our effort to prove otherwise. Our supporters are very knowledgeable and engaged. Their opinions are very valuable and insightful and Congress needs to hear them."
