Committee Blasts Foreign Nations for Joining Lawsuit

The U.S. Border Security Council is sharply criticizing sixteen central and South American countries for joining a lawsuit aimed at invalidating South Carolina's new immigration law.

"The countries need to butt out of our business and get their own sorry excuses for nations back in order," says Steve LeBlanc, the Council's national spokesman. "South Carolina has the right to enforce its laws and if the citizens of all these third-world countries had decent economic opportunities, perhaps they wouldn't be so keen on escaping and trespassing on ours. The U.S. State Department should lodge a formal complaint with each of these nation's and point out that they are meddling in the internal affairs of the world's sole remaining superpower."

The South Carolina law in question is modeled on the wildly popular anti-illegal immigration

Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, a "former" communist, has joined a lawsuit against the government of South Carolina over its anti-illegal alien law.

Petitions Flood Capitol Hill As Obama Imposes Amnesty

Petitions opposing amnesty and signed by supporters of the U.S. Border Security Council continue to pour in from across the nation.

Meanwhile President Barack Obama continues to implement a form of Amnesty without Congressional approval.

"I can say without qualification that Obama's order to immigration official to stop enforcing many immigration laws has the American people more angry than ever," says Council National Spokesman Steve LeBlanc. "Petitions opposing Amnesty continue to pour into our offices."

LeBlanc says a new batch of signed petitions was recently sent up to Capitol Hill as part of the Council's ongoing anti-Amnesty lobbying efforts. "Stacks of signed petitions get noticed on Capitol Hill," he says. "Petition drives and

Border Security News in Brief

Drug Smuggler Sentenced to Ten Years

A Mexican national legally in the United States has been sentenced to 126 months in federal prison without parole for smuggling 2,648 kilograms of marijuana.

Dolmuz-Carcamo pleaded guilty to the one-count indictment after the first day of a jury trial that began April 25, 2011. Yesterday, he received the 10+ years in prison which will be followed by a five-year-term of supervised release.

Document Forgery Rings Foiled

More than 300 law enforcement officers from federal and local agencies recently executed dozens of arrest and search warrants in investigations of multiple fraudulent document rings operating in Los Angeles, Riverside, and Santa Barbara Counties; Northern California; Illinois; and Texas, with connections to other states and Mexico. The criminal enterprises provide forged identification documents to illegal aliens.

Hackers Threaten Zetas Drug Cartel

The computer hacker group known as “Anonymous” is threatening Mexico’s Zetas drug cartel with exposure of its allies in the local police and news media unless the gang frees a kidnapped member of its group.

There is no independent confirmation that the threat from the notorious group of computer experts is legitimate nor is it known who the kidnapped individual is.

The group threatens to disrupt the Zeta’s drug dealing and money laundering business through computer attacks.

SNEAK OF THE MONTH: Republican U.S. Senator Marco Rubio

Republican U.S. Senator Marco Rubio is this month’s “Sneak of the Month” for bizarre comments he made before a audience of reporters on the issue of illegal immigrants.

“We cannot be the anti-illegal immigration party. We have to be the pro-legal immigration party,” complained Rubio about pro-border security Republicans. “We have to be a party that advocates for a legal immigration system that’s good for Americans, good for America and honors our tradition both as a nation of immigrants and as a nation of law.”

Rubio claims that he opposes amnesty for illegal aliens.

measure passed by the Arizona state legislature earlier this year. An number of foreign nations have joined the legal fight against that law as well.

“Nicaragua of all places has joined this lawsuit,” explains LeBlanc. “Nicaragua is ruled by the infamous Daniel Ortega, a supposedly reformed former communist who spend much the 1980s sponsoring left-wing guerrilla groups across Central America. Now this vile man is trying to use the American court system against us. This is an unbelievable situation!”

LeBlanc says that to the best of his knowlege, the U.S. Border Security Council is the only national group openly opposing the participation of foreign countries in these type of legal proceedings.

“Our goal is to stop this nonsense,” he says. “If Barack Obama’s State Department won’t act, then I believe the U.S. Congress should pass a resolution condemning these nations for their meddling. Someone must stand up to this.”

“These countries need to butt out of our business and get their own sorry excuses for nations back in order,” says Steve LeBlanc, the Council’s national spokesman.

The Council’s greatest fear is that liberal U.S. courts will begin to listen to arguments made by these nation’s and will start issuing rulings that effectively confer citizenship status on the millions of illegals already here in the United States.

“The courts have already said that American taxpayers must provide free education through grade 12 for all illegal alien children,” LeBlanc warns. “You can bet that countries like Mexico and Nicaragua will eventually have high-priced American lawyers arguing in federal court that illegal aliens should be allowed to vote in U.S. elections. We need to tell these foreigners to get out of our courts.”

LeBlanc says the the Council is seriously considering launching a grassroots campaign demanding Congress pass a resolution against this foreign meddling. “The only thing really holding us back from starting such a campaign is cost,” he says. “We’re fighting against Obama’s amnesty plans like crazy and we don’t have the funds to wage another battle right now.”

Still, he says the issue is extremely important and the Council will certainly continue to make its voice heard on this issue, no matter what.

phone calls from constituents is what has prevented the Administration from getting Ammesty passed through Congress. This strong public outcry against rewarding illegal aliens is what has convinced Obama to implement Amnesty through executive action.

Mr. Obama last summer ordered immigration authorities to stop prosecuting illegal alien students effectively imposing the illegal alien amnesty called “the Dream Act” without an act of Congress.

“What Mr. Obama is doing is illegal,” complained LeBlanc upon hearing the news of the Administration’s actions. “The American people are going to be outraged.”

People are indeed outraged if the responses to the Council’s most recent petition drives are any guide.

“You might think that our supporters would simply give up now that Obama has simply imposed an illegal alien amnesty on the country,” LeBlanc muses. “However, it clearly has simply stirred up a hornet’s nest. Anyone who cares about securing our borders is angrier and more determined than ever. That’s whay so many people are signing so many petitions for us.”

LeBlanc says the Council will continue lobbying Congress and fighting to have Obama’s executive order overturned. “Barack Obama still hasn’t granted amnesty to every illegal alien, yet,” LeBlanc warns. “He’s certainly going to keep pushing for that and we are going to keep fighting him hard. That means we’ll be sending out more surveys and petitions. We’ll be asking our supporters to make more phone calls to Congress and to lobby their legislators in person if possible. We have to get Congress to stand up to Barack Obama and the illegal alien lobby.”

LeBlanc urges all Council supporters to sign and return each and every petition they receive in the mail.

Dear Friend,

President Obama may think he has won a round in the battle to grant amnesty to millions of illegal aliens. However, I sure don't.

Mr. Obama's executive order effectively granting amnesty to illegal alien college students is, of course, a big set back for border security proponents.

However, this action has enraged the American people and brought the issue of amnesty back into the news.

Thanks to Barack Obama's arrogance, amnesty will now be an even bigger issue in next year's election.

And you can be sure the U.S. Border Security Council will be educating the public about which candidates support the illegal alien trespassers and which will stand up for America!

LeBlanc Again Demands Eric Holder Be Fired over Scandal

U.S. Border Security Council National Spokesman Steve LeBlanc is again calling for the dismissal of Attorney General Eric Holder after Holder refused to apologize to the family of a U.S. Border Patrol Agent who was killed by a drug gang member using a U.S. government supplied weapon.

The weapon was sold to drug gangs as part of the Justice Department's "Fast and Furious" gun tracking operation.

"Mr. Holder shouldn't be given the opportunity to resign much less remain in office," says LeBlanc. "He should be fired immediately. His callous disregard for the lives of the men and women under his command, his lying under oath concerning what he knew about the Fast and Furious operation as well as his general incompetence all disqualify him from continuing to serve as Attorney General."

Council National Spokesman Steve LeBlanc says Eric Holder must be fired for presiding over the "Fast and Furious" program that resulted in the death of a border patrol agent
